Howard Fenton
Senior Consultant, Production and Digital Technology

Author, trainer and consultant Howie Fenton has worked with graphic communications companies nationwide for the past two decades. With a client list of over 250 companies, he specializes in digital printing, digital prepress workflow, and the management of digital technologies.

In addition to over 300 magazine articles, Mr. Fenton has authored five books on digital printing, scanning, color management, process control, and digital technologies. He is a judge for the PODI (Print On Demand Initiative) Best Practices in Digital Print awards, and has served on the PIA/GATF Digital Printing Council as well as the HP Digital Printing Advisory Council.

Mr. Fenton has been a featured speaker at Graph Expo, NAPL's Top Management Conference, and nearly every major industry show in the country, as well as conferences abroad. He has taught advanced computer graphics at Monclair State College, Montclair, NJ, and computer to plate, digital printing, and PDF workflows at Rochester Institute of Technology (RIT) School of Printing. Mr. Fenton lives with his family in Colorado.
